INTRODUCTION: WHAT IS A MODULE? WHAT IS A COURSE?

A module is a teaching unit and can consist of several courses (lectures, seminars, excursions, practical exercises, tutorials...).

Example:

(4902-440) Economics and Environmental Policy consists of 4 courses:

- 4902-441 Basic Microeconomics (1st half of the semester)
- 4902-442 Environmental Policy (2nd half of the semester)
- 4902-443 Exercises to Basic Microeconomics (1st half of the semester)
- 4902-444 Exercises to Environmental Policy (2nd half of the semester)

Module = teaching unit

Courses =
sub-units of modules

INTRODUCTION: DIFFERENCE BETWEEN „MODULE CATALOG“ AND „COURSE CATALOG“

- The Module Catalog shows the structure of the study programs, it lists the compulsory, semi-elective and elective modules and indicates in which semester they are supposed to be studied. Here you will not find information about the teaching in the current semester!
- The Course Catalog shows the courses offered in the respective semester, including information about the time and the venue of lectures, the teaching mode (online / in presence on campus) and the link to the ILIAS course.
- Both catalogs are publicly accessible without being enrolled!

MODULE CODE - MIRRORS THE FACULTY'S STRUCTURE

(4902-440) Economics and Environmental Policy

Each module and each course is assigned a specific code.

The first four digits represent the respective institute and the department (i.e. of the responsible person / course instructor).

The next three digits correlate to the type of module, as well as the courses.

- 4902 -440 = institute number (310 – 490 in the Faculty of Agriculture)
- 4902 -440 = department within the institute (1 - 9 possible)
- 4902 -440 = module designation:
  - 010 - 200 basic modules for Bachelor's students
  - 210 - 400 specialization study modules for Bachelor's students
  - 410 - 800 modules for Master's students
  - 810 - 900 modules for PhD students
- 0000 -011 = course 1 of a module (1 - 9 courses possible)
